CAFÉ YUMMI SHARES BUMPER CROP OF BEANS

In March, FFLC and the Oregon Food Bank distributed over 500 bushels of black beans harvested from Café Yumm!, a social enterprise located in Eugene. The café sourced the black beans from a South American farm that transitioned from traditional growing methods to all organic practices. The beans are farmed using regenerative farming methods and certified organic. Café Yumm! has a mission to source 30% of their beans from small-scale, regenerative farms, and this year they have successfully sourced over 5% of their beans from such farms.

Eligibility rules for SNAP and other assistance programs are based on outdated assumptions of who a college student is, but food insecurity on college campuses is just one of many barriers to college student food security. In partnership with the UO to address hunger on campus, in partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus.

The pantry is just one way FFLC, with your support, is partnering with the UO to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus.

In March, FFLC and the Oregon Food Bank distributed over 500 bushels of black beans harvested from Café Yumm!, a social enterprise located in Eugene. The café sourced the black beans from a South American farm that transitioned from traditional growing methods to all organic practices. The beans are farmed using regenerative farming methods and certified organic. Café Yumm! has a mission to source 30% of their beans from small-scale, regenerative farms, and this year they have successfully sourced over 5% of their beans from such farms.

Eligibility rules for SNAP and other assistance programs are based on outdated assumptions of who a college student is, but food insecurity on college campuses is just one of many barriers to college student food security. In partnership with the UO to address hunger on campus, in partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus.

In March, FFLC and the Oregon Food Bank distributed over 500 bushels of black beans harvested from Café Yumm!, a social enterprise located in Eugene. The café sourced the black beans from a South American farm that transitioned from traditional growing methods to all organic practices. The beans are farmed using regenerative farming methods and certified organic. Café Yumm! has a mission to source 30% of their beans from small-scale, regenerative farms, and this year they have successfully sourced over 5% of their beans from such farms.

Eligibility rules for SNAP and other assistance programs are based on outdated assumptions of who a college student is, but food insecurity on college campuses is just one of many barriers to college student food security. In partnership with the UO to address hunger on campus, in partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus.

In March, FFLC and the Oregon Food Bank distributed over 500 bushels of black beans harvested from Café Yumm!, a social enterprise located in Eugene. The café sourced the black beans from a South American farm that transitioned from traditional growing methods to all organic practices. The beans are farmed using regenerative farming methods and certified organic. Café Yumm! has a mission to source 30% of their beans from small-scale, regenerative farms, and this year they have successfully sourced over 5% of their beans from such farms.

Eligibility rules for SNAP and other assistance programs are based on outdated assumptions of who a college student is, but food insecurity on college campuses is just one of many barriers to college student food security. In partnership with the UO to address hunger on campus, in partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus.

In March, FFLC and the Oregon Food Bank distributed over 500 bushels of black beans harvested from Café Yumm!, a social enterprise located in Eugene. The café sourced the black beans from a South American farm that transitioned from traditional growing methods to all organic practices. The beans are farmed using regenerative farming methods and certified organic. Café Yumm! has a mission to source 30% of their beans from small-scale, regenerative farms, and this year they have successfully sourced over 5% of their beans from such farms.

Eligibility rules for SNAP and other assistance programs are based on outdated assumptions of who a college student is, but food insecurity on college campuses is just one of many barriers to college student food security. In partnership with the UO to address hunger on campus, in partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus.

In March, FFLC and the Oregon Food Bank distributed over 500 bushels of black beans harvested from Café Yumm!, a social enterprise located in Eugene. The café sourced the black beans from a South American farm that transitioned from traditional growing methods to all organic practices. The beans are farmed using regenerative farming methods and certified organic. Café Yumm! has a mission to source 30% of their beans from small-scale, regenerative farms, and this year they have successfully sourced over 5% of their beans from such farms.

Eligibility rules for SNAP and other assistance programs are based on outdated assumptions of who a college student is, but food insecurity on college campuses is just one of many barriers to college student food security. In partnership with the UO to address hunger on campus, in partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus.

In March, FFLC and the Oregon Food Bank distributed over 500 bushels of black beans harvested from Café Yumm!, a social enterprise located in Eugene. The café sourced the black beans from a South American farm that transitioned from traditional growing methods to all organic practices. The beans are farmed using regenerative farming methods and certified organic. Café Yumm! has a mission to source 30% of their beans from small-scale, regenerative farms, and this year they have successfully sourced over 5% of their beans from such farms.

Eligibility rules for SNAP and other assistance programs are based on outdated assumptions of who a college student is, but food insecurity on college campuses is just one of many barriers to college student food security. In partnership with the UO to address hunger on campus, in partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus.

In March, FFLC and the Oregon Food Bank distributed over 500 bushels of black beans harvested from Café Yumm!, a social enterprise located in Eugene. The café sourced the black beans from a South American farm that transitioned from traditional growing methods to all organic practices. The beans are farmed using regenerative farming methods and certified organic. Café Yumm! has a mission to source 30% of their beans from small-scale, regenerative farms, and this year they have successfully sourced over 5% of their beans from such farms.

Eligibility rules for SNAP and other assistance programs are based on outdated assumptions of who a college student is, but food insecurity on college campuses is just one of many barriers to college student food security. In partnership with the UO to address hunger on campus, in partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus. In partnership with FFLC is working with the University of Oregon State Employees Food Drive to address hunger on campus.
LEARNING TO THRIVE

Nathan is 15 and lives in Cottage Grove with his twin boys, who turned four in April. After completing FFLC’s workforce training program last year, Nathan got a job at Starfire Lumber Co. in Cottage Grove just as he was graduating middle school. “We have something called custody of his children. Starfire has been a great place for Nathan. He started getting the experience he needed to prepare and earn his high school equivalency,” says his mother. “At FFLC, I learned a lot about myself and I gained a new way of looking at things.”

Nathan credits FFLC’s job training program for giving him the skills he needed to learn about the job market and encourage the next generation of chefs. Recipients of the West Family Culinary Award are excited to inspire students and encourage the next generation of chefs.

WAYS TO DONATE

DONATE ONLINE
foodforlanecounty.org/donate

MAIL GIFTS
P.O. Box 1392
Eugene, OR 97402

CALL
(541) 345-3823

EMPTY BOWLS SALE

Join us Friday, May 3 at The Dining Room for the Empty Bowls Sale, presented by Northwest Community Credit Union. We will have more than 1,000 handmade bowls for sale starting at $10. All proceeds will be given to a local restaurant to help fund a $20 bowl of soup at a participating restaurant.

Thank you to Northwest Community Credit Union, Georgies Ceramic and Clay Co., KMTS and Brickleaf Graphics for your support.

BECAUSE NO ONE SHOULD BE HUNGRY

A recent study by the Fundraising Effectiveness Project, which tracks giving from more than 4,000 shelters, revealed that giving to nonprofits in Lane County did not keep up with inflation. In fact, nearly all other measures—gifts smaller than $1,000, new donors and donor retention—declined last year.

In Lane County, the Department of Environmental Quality, Department of Human Services District and ODOT.

44% of households do not earn enough to cover their basic needs. This is according to Lane County’s 2016 Census 2016.

In Lane County, 44% of households do not earn enough to cover their basic needs. This is according to Lane County’s 2016 Census 2016.

Every dollar, every pound, every hour helps people in Lane County—your neighbors and ours—have the resources they need to thrive. At FFLC, our mission is to help everyone who needs help and to ensure that anyone needing help will receive it, because we believe “no one should be hungry.”

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.

In Lane County, 59% of respondents are able to pay rent or mortgage, 37% are able to get the medicine they need, 37% are able to get an education and 24% of respondents have more energy for work and family and 12% are able to focus on a job search.